

NAME:

Patricia "Exec" Sanger-Norton

NATIONALITY:

American (Detroit area)

BIO:

"Patricia, a businesswoman from Detroit, had her first unexpected contact with gunfire protecting her employer's business in South America - business that, to quote her, "was by no means a bold drug smuggling scheme using company import/export system as a cover". After DEA raided corporate headquarters back home, estranged Norton tried to use abandoned assets to establish her own operation until fierce competition and lack of proper dental plan drove her out of the market to work as a contractor."

TAGLINES:

"Think you can swim with sharks, small fry? Not in MY pond!" (Killing enemy.)

"I was employee of the month... Every month!" (Advertising herself on website.)

"That's it! One more shot and I'll go over there, rip your head off and turn it into a freakin' hand puppet!"
(Reacting to heavy fire in "alternate" state.)

QUIRKS/ADDITIONAL INFO:

"Unfortunately a personal quality control policy she tried to enforce during career reflected badly on her health." [She's a coke addict and might randomly relapse while staying in urban sectors. In this "alternate" state, she'll steadily lose skills but won't require any sleep.]

DESCRIPTION/APPEARANCE: